Hub One's Board of Directors appoints Guillaume de Lavallade as Chief Executive Officer

The Board of Directors at Hub One, an information and communication technology service group in a professional environments and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Groupe ADP, has appointed Guillaume de Lavallade as Chief Executive Officer. He succeeds Bertrand Laurioz, who has been acting as Executive Director since the departure of Patrice Bélie in April 2018, and who is returning to his position as Director of the Telecom Division within the subsidiary.

In this role, Guillaume de Lavallade will lead Hub One's growth strategy around the three main areas of development: professional private radio, software publishing and cybersecurity, in line with Groupe ADP airport management expertise, present on the whole chain of trades

Guillaume de Lavallade started his career as a GSM pre-sales engineer at Nortel Networks from 1997 to 1999. Then, he spent three years as a strategy consultant for the Boston Consulting Group. In 2002, he was appointed director of a business unit at Thomson, then in the joint venture created with the Chinese company TCL.

He joined SFR in 2007 as Network Marketing Director, before becoming B-to-B Customer Relationship Manager and finally, in 2015, General Manager B-to-B.

Guillaume de Lavallade is graduated from Supélec and Sciences Po Paris.

"We welcomes the arrival of Guillaume de Lavallade who has a very rich background and will bring his dynamism and his vision of the sector so that Hub One continues to develop its unique position on the market, technological partner of the companies of the transformation. We thank Bertrand Laurioz for acting as interim CEO of Hub One during the recent months." said Augustin de Romanet, Chairman and CEO of Groupe ADP.
